Subject Specific Opportunities

Whether you're still deciding which course to study at University, or already have a firm idea of what you'd like to study, now is a great time to carry out some research and wider reading.

Several Universities offer online modules called MOOCs (Massive Online Open Courses). These are a great way for you to learn more about a subject and decide if it is something you would like to study at undergraduate level.

Completing a MOOC in your chosen subject area is also a good way to show evidence of your wider reading and indicates a genuine interest in your subject.
